

Philomena Kebec belongs to the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa and is an Addiction Policy Scholar of the O'Neil Institute on National and Global at Georgetown Law. Philomena currently serves as the Economic Development Coordinator for the Bad River Tribe, where she is working on building systems and supports for tribal small businesses, harm reduction programming and wellness and increasing access to local & traditional foods. Philomena is an attorney licensed to practice law in tribal and state courts and has over a decade of experience providing legal and policy services to tribal nations.